BREAKER ROMANCE OF OLD WOMAN AND YOUNG MAN REVEALED IN WILL FIGHT

How relevantly was Barnes guarded wife in woodshed from them in 1902.

Miss Pierce, seventy-seven, married to Dr. Barnes, thirty-two, in 1900.

That January and May Can't Be Happy Together Proved Again in Case of Mrs. Barnes.

By Rev. Albert E. George.
LOVE, marriage, divorce, making of wills, and a legal contest are the chapters in the life and achievements of the late Mrs. Lillian Pierce Barnes, of Newton, whose sensational marriage to a young physician, Dr. Charles H. Barnes, in 1900, can easily be recalled.

The Probate Court at East Cambridgeport, yesterday, four hours in hearing to the evidence of Dr. E. A. Andrews and the same who attended Mr. Barnes before her death, Miss Anna Ross.

The long, weary chain of evidence almost emptied the court room. Those who were present were directly connected with the case, either as witnesses or had lived as neighbors to this woman to whom love came late in life.

Why did love come so late to Miss Pierce? She could not have read more love novels and been so much in love with her husband. Why did she wait so long? She could not have an opportunity with her single sons to whom she was worthy of some man.

No, she waited. She gave her heart when seventy-seven years of age to, comparatively speaking, a young man. Now a young man can readily love money.

Young Do Not Love Old.
But a woman over seventy should know that there is no real love in a young man's heart for an old woman.

That she did not know. Miss Ross, the nurse, testified in court that Mrs. Barnes married the young man because she thought he loved her, but she found out after that that she was mistaken.

The nurse also said, as Mrs. Barnes told her, that she got fooled when she married this man, and she was ashamed of her old age. In their home in California there was a great deal of love life.

Then the bride came back to her old home in Massachusetts and made a great deal of money. But what had become of the $50,000 which she had given to her doctor after marriage?

She found out that her marriage was not made in Heaven, she endeavored to recover some of it. It is a legal fight which probably ten thousand dollars was left.

Admitted of Marriage.
But from one trouble she moved to another, and litigation is pending over the character of the will made in the interest of friends and relatives.

It was the father of the young life, it was the son, as Mrs. Ross testified, the young doctor and his wife, who was the daughter and declared she had married her father's doctor after marriage.

Old Enough to Be His Mother.
Miss Pierce thought she was a young woman, she thought she loved him, she thought she was young, she thought she was young, she thought she was young.

Old Enough to Be His Mother.
Miss Pierce thought she was a young woman, she thought she loved him, she thought she was young, she thought she was young, she thought she was young.

Of the New England

BOSTON AMERICAN is far and away the greatest

Of the four leading
